

Thole: Keeping 'Strong' ties to the Vikings

Published August 16, 2012 at 11:43 am

Angie Strong '89, a former captain of the Chevals and Ponies' synchronized swim team, is a professional dog trainer who resides in St. Paul with her husband Tim and daughter Kyra.

Former Stillwater Chevals captain Angie Strong, shown with her husband Tim and daughter Kyra, remains involved with the Minnesota Vikings as a member of the team's cheerleading alumni, a group that performs on game day at the plaza.

The former Minnesota Vikings cheerleader trains dogs of every type, including the aggressive ones — with the development of therapy dogs as her specialty.

Despite her busy schedule, Angie is a member of the Minnesota Vikings Cheerleading Alumni. The alums are a group that performs at the plaza on Vikings' game day.

These veterans are used to hard work on Sundays after having been regular Vikings cheerleaders in their early days. They are still a game day plus for fans of the Purple.

I should mention that Angie is a product of our Fairmeadows neighborhood.

Contributed photo: Former Stillwater Chevals captain Angie Strong, shown with her husband Tim and daughter Kyra, remains involved with the Minnesota Vikings as a member of the team's cheerleading alumni, a group that performs on game day at the plaza.

Former Stillwater Chevals captain Angie Strong, first row, second from left, remains involved with the Minnesota Vikings as a member of the team's cheerleading alumni, a group that performs on game day at the plaza.